Michael Lachney has a PhD in Science and Technology Studies from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, where he is currently a postdoctoral research assistant. Michael's research at the intersections of culturally responsive computing and STEM education have appeared in Learning, Media and Technology, Computational Culture: A Journal of Software Studies, International Journal for Research in Mathematics Education, among others.