

Transitional Justice, Human Rights and the Politics of Memory in post-1989 Central and Eastern Europe

In Bucharest: an archive of the former Communist secret police, where agents created colour-coded maps to keep track of Greek Catholic priests and their level of opposition to the regime. Photo courtesy of Lucian Turcescu.

February 21, 2018 | 5:00 PM | ASU Tempe Campus
Lattie F. Coor Hall, Rm 5536 | 975 S Myrtle Ave, Tempe

Dr. Michael Kraus, Frederick C. Dirks Professor of Political Science, directs Russian and East European studies at Middlebury College. He earned his Ph.D. in Politics at Princeton. At Middlebury, he teaches courses in transitional justice, Soviet & Russian politics, Central and East European politics, and leadership. His research interests include comparative democratization, Russian and European politics, transitional justice, ethnic conflict, and leadership. Kraus has published the books: Irreconcilable Differences? Explaining Czechoslovakia's Dissolution; Russia and Eastern Europe After Communism: The Search for New Political, Economic, and Security Systems; and Perestroika and East-West Economic Relations: Prospects for the 1990s. He is the recipient of fellowships from the National Council of Soviet and East European Research, Ford Foundation, IREX, Fulbright-Hays, Rotary International Foundation, ACLS, and SSRC.

<https://melikian.asu.edu>
www.facebook.com/asu.mcrees
melikiancenter@asu.edu | 480-965-4188