We invite you to join us for a dynamic conversation about how the incoming administration may shape key policies and civic life. A panel of faculty experts will deliver brief presentations addressing these essential questions: What can we expect? What are some concerns and challenges to watch for? What are your hopes? How can we engage civically?

Following the presentations, the floor will open for a community Q&A, giving you the chance to ask questions and participate in meaningful dialogue.

Don't miss this opportunity to gain insights, discuss pressing issues and explore ways to stay informed and involved.
