

Global Advocacy Certificate Program

The Global Advocacy Certificate Program (GACP) is for ASU faculty and staff who desire to cultivate a globally-minded campus. Participants will broaden their awareness of intercultural topics and learn specific strategies for supporting culturally and linguistically diverse (CLD) students and scholars in the classroom and workplace to promote a more diverse community for all.

All ASU faculty and staff—including GACP certificate holders—are invited to attend workshops for ongoing learning, regardless of their intentions to receive a certificate. Participation will be recorded as professional development training on ASU's Career Edge.

BECOME A GLOBAL ADVOCATE

To earn a certificate as a Global Advocate, participants must register for and attend the Foundations of Global Advocacy core course plus at least three elective courses during an academic year. All courses are free of charge and fill on a first-come, first-served basis. Participants can earn certificates every year.

Participants in GACP Workshops will learn:

- awareness of international campus resources for students, staff, and faculty
- strategies to serve as resources for international students
- proficiencies to identify and navigate cultural and linguistic diversity

ADVANCED GACP WORKSHOPS

Participants who already have received a certificate during prior GACP workshop series are invited to join the program in subsequent years. (see Page 2 for details)
