November Speaker Series

Accelerating Innovations in the Healthcare & Life Sciences Industry
Presented by: Dr. Chris Yoo

We are at the beginning of a remarkable transformation from an analog world to a digital one. Developing the skills to thrive in a digitally transforming industry will require that the next generation of knowledge workers have a high level of comfort with technological change. This presentation will review methods that have helped entrepreneurs and companies adapt quickly to succeed in the Healthcare & Life Sciences Industry.

Dr. Chris Yoo is an experienced leader in understanding the latest biomedical and information-based technologies - both today’s innovations and the future’s potential - and in developing strategic ventures to prove the value of the molecular understanding of disease - for better medical decisions, and ultimately for better practice of medicine for the benefit of patients. Chris has worked for large technology companies, founded several startups, and published important research findings in respected scientific journals, all in the pursuit of the application of solutions for the Healthcare and Life Sciences Industry.
