

Live@HEALab

Fall 2020 Speaker Series

“What’s Your Problem?”

presented by Rick Hall, PhD, FAND

While there is no shortage of health-related problems in 2020, thinking entrepreneurially can shift your mindset to see these problems as opportunities for solutions. Join Rick Hall, Sr. Director of Health Innovation at ASU, to explore the use of design thinking and techniques to ideate, test, and refine your idea to improve health care.

Rick Hall is a clinical professor and senior director in the Edson College of Nursing and Health Innovation at Arizona State University, where he teaches coursework on health entrepreneurship and innovation methodology. His appointment includes administration of the Masters in Healthcare Innovation and Bachelors of Science in Health

Entrepreneurship and Innovation degrees. He is the director of the Executive Fellowship in Innovation Health Leadership, the Health Entrepreneurship Accelerator Lab (HEALab), and the Mayo Clinic ASU MedTech Accelerator.

Thursday, September 3, 2020

3:30 - 4:30 p.m.

Online via Zoom

RSVP at <https://na.eventscloud.com/hall>

Free to attend. RSVP to receive the Zoom link.

Have a BIG IDEA?

As ASU's first accelerator focused solely on health and health care solutions, the Health Entrepreneurship Accelerator Lab (HEALab) is an interdisciplinary endeavor between Entrepreneurship + Innovation, Edson College of Nursing and Health Innovation, College of Health Solutions, and New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences to provide an array of resources for innovators who are interested in bringing their health-related business ventures to market.

HEALTH
Entrepreneurship
+ Innovation
CLUB

 Edson College of Nursing and Health Innovation
Arizona State University